GANG WAR KILLINGS RENEWED IN CHICAGO AS TWO FOUND SLAIN

McErlane Blamed; Another Gangster Dies In Indiana

CHICAGO, March 6.—A new gangland war loomed today in the beer running territory "back o' the yards" with the finding of the bodies of John "Dingbat" Oberta, politician, beer baron and gangster, lieutenant of "Big Joe" Salts, and his bodyguard, Sammy "Texas" Malaga.

Oberta's body was found in his expensive automobile on the far outskirts of the city, his head blown off by a charge from a sawed-off shot gun. The body of Malaga was found half-submerged in a roadside ditch a few feet from the car, bullets through his head and heart.

Police immediately saw in the killings the culmination of a boast by Frank McErlane, rival gang leader, that when he left a hospital where three gunmen tried to kill him, "there would be plenty of guys taken for a ride."

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 6.—"Orlando Jack" Horton, former Chicago gangster, lay dead here today, the victim of a gang "ride."

Horton was shot five times in the back and his body was hurled into a lonely strawberry patch near here late yesterday.

In 1924 after the murder of his partner, John Duffy, Chicago's first "ride" victim, Horton was hunted throughout the nation. Duffy himself was murdered by a rival Chicago bootleg gang for the murder of Duffy's common law wife, Maybelle Exley.

The bootlegger who undertook the execution termed the woman's slaying as "the unwarranted degradation of the profession."

PRISONER IS FREED
UNDER COURT ORDER
ALLOWING TIME OFF

Ruling Expected To Set Precedent In Ohio Cases

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—In what was regarded as a "test case" Frank Reeves, Meigs County, today had won his freedom from the Ohio State penitentiary here by a writ of habeas corpus from the Ohio supreme court. At least twenty-five other convicts are expected to gain their liberty in the same manner.

Reeves, who was serving a seven year sentence for larceny, sought his freedom on the grounds that he should be given credit for good behavior to the extent of 924 days.

Admitted to the penal colony August 12 1925, Reeves, in his writ of habeas corpus, alleged that his term, taking into consideration the "good behavior time," had been served, and that he was being illegally held. The supreme court ordered his release immediately.

The decision will affect the cases of at least twenty-five other convicts and it makes it mandatory to allow the convicts "short time" for good behavior.

MINER IS PROBABLY FATALLY WOUNDED

ATHENS, O., March 6.—Floyd Katzenbach, a miner, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Melvin Tolliver, mine boss, at the White Ash mine, today, according to fragmentary reports from Bailey Run.

Fiduciaries refused to disclose any of the details of the shooting until an investigation had been completed. Katzenbach was being rushed to a hospital at Columbus, county officials said.

FORMER ACTRESS
FALLS TO DEATH

NEW YORK, March 6.—Mrs. Enos Booth, estranged wife of a prominent attorney and once well known on the stage as Christine Norman, fell to her death today from an open window in her suite on the twentieth floor of a fashionable hotel here.

John Simson, an ash collector, said he heard her scream and saw her body strike the pavement.

FOUR PERISH IN HOTEL FIRE

BOSTON, March 6.—Four persons, a man, a woman and two children, were killed, nine persons, including a fireman, were injured and removed to City Hospital and thirty-five persons including a large group of children, were rescued today when flames swept the Clover Apartment Hotel in the thickly populated Shawmut Avenue section of the south end.

INCOME TAX BOGEY

With Eleanor Boardman, above, fined $2,000; Tom Mix, inset, left, $3,000, on pleas of guilty to charges of income tax evasions, tax reports continue to be the bugaboo and snare of the Hollywood film colony. King Vidor, inset, right, is scheduled to plead guilty to a similar charge. They all have asserted that they left their tax reports to experts and abided by their figures.

PECK WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE; JUDGE MORROW IS CONSIDERED

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—Politics assumed a place in the limelight again today because of the withdrawal of one proposed gubernatorial candidate from the Democratic camp and due to the meeting of the Ohio League of Republican Clubs here tonight.

John Wald Peck, former U. S. judge of Cincinnati who was mentioned as a possible Democratic candidate for governor, has announced that he would not throw his hat into the gubernatorial ring. Another Cincinnati man, Common Pleas Judge Thomas H. Morrow, is being considered as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for chief state executive.

INSURGENTS RALLY FROM FIRST DEFEAT IN TARIFF DISPUTE

Coalition Loses In Approval Of Sugar Tariff Rates

WASHINGTON, Mar. 6.—Shaken by its first major defeat in six months of tariff warfare, the Democratic-Insurgent coalition rallied in the senate today to battle against higher protection on oil, lumber, hides, leather and building materials.

After ruling supreme in every major clash on the pending tariff bill, the coalition went down to defeat when the senate approved a $32,000,000 increase in sugar tariffs by adopting new rates of $2.00 per hundred pounds on Cuban imports and $2.50 against world imports. Coalition leaders charged a sugar, oil and lumber combination, by agreeing to trade votes, brought about the increase in sugar duties.

The coalition forces were confident of keeping both oil and lumber on the free list, although a repetition of the sugar "trading" could easily result in placing a tariff on lumber. The oil leaders were said to be planning on proposing a duty of 80 cents a barrel on crude oil and a rate of 40 per cent ad valorem on gasoline. This would amount to about 24 cents a gallon on gasoline. To write it into the bill, the oil forces must secure seven new votes, since the senate previously rejected the oil tariff by a vote of 39 to 27.

BRITISH REVEAL CUT IN NAVY COSTS

LONDON, March 6.—Publication today of estimates for British naval expenditures for 1930 revealed a reduction of $4,126,000 (approximately $20,630,000) from naval expenditures made in 1929.

The 1930 naval estimates were placed by the admiralty at $51,739,000 (about $258,695,000) as compared with the 1929 figure at $55,865,000 (about $279,325,000). The 1930 naval estimates were hailed with optimism in London naval conference circles as indicating that the British government feels certain the five-power parity will result in actual naval reduction.

FALL KILLS CHILD

ATHENS, O., March 6.—William Drake, 9-year-old son of W. B. Drake, president of the local merchant's association, is dead today as the result of a broken neck which he sustained in a fall in the garage of his home here last night.

The boy was climbing on the side of the garage, when he slipped and fell to the concrete pavement. He was taken to Athens Hospital where he died a short time later.

REPORT 500 TO 700 DIE IN FLOODS IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 6.—Between five hundred and seven hundred persons lost their lives in the devastating floods which ravaged thousands of acres of southern France, according to unconfirmed reports reaching here today.

A full-check-up is impossible owing to the severance of communications with many villages and towns in the affected area.

If the latest reports are confirmed, the floods will stand as one of the greatest peacetime disasters in the history of France. Ten thousand persons have been rendered homeless.

FLOATING ICE BARS LIQUOR SMUGGLERS ON CANADA BORDER

Lowman Says New Law Will Assist Dry Workers

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Floating ice in the Niagara and Detroit Rivers is proving a big barrier to Canadian bootleggers now trying to get liquor into United States before enactment of a Dominion law prohibiting clearances of alcoholics to this country.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman said today that even after navigation conditions become better it will not be necessary to materially strengthen the anti-smuggling forces along the lakes and border. He said that substantial reinforcements have been deployed along the border for some time and that the dry army should be adequate to meet the situation.

"So far we have not been troubled by any unusual activity of Canadian smugglers," Lowman said. "Navigation conditions are perilous. Some rum boats have been lost in the almost impassable Niagara River and others broken up by ice in other waters. One with several men on board went over the falls. The smugglers are taking desperate chances with the ice as well as government forces."

Lowman said anti-smuggling forces were making a number of captures of row boats weekly and picking up a few larger boats. He expressed the belief that the proposed legislation in Canada would be extremely helpful in meeting the border smuggling situation, which has been a trying problem to the government virtually ever since the prohibition law was enacted.

The government is not planning a definite spring offensive against smugglers. It will be possible, however, to strengthen the Atlantic patrol with some of the cutters, destroyers and other craft relieved of a part of their winter life saving work. Others will be transferred from Southern waters.

With the termination of the winter tourist season officials anticipated all would be quiet on the Florida front until next fall. Smuggling during the past winter was described as somewhat less in volume than the year before.

No new prohibition policies were anticipated until it is determined what congress will do with the legislation to transfer the prohibition bureau from the treasury to the justice department. Enactment of this legislation was anticipated by high treasury officials, all of whom were anxious to see the bureau transferred.

PATTERSON IS GIVEN NEW TRIAL BECAUSE OF TECHNICALITY

Former Mortgage Company Head Wins Dispute

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—Setting aside his conviction in the lower courts, the Ohio supreme court today had ordered a new trial for Ray H. Patterson, former director of the now defunct Cities Mortgage Company, the failure of which caused a loss of approximately $2,000,000 to about 2,000 stockholders in various parts of Ohio.

Patterson was convicted in the lower courts and was sentenced to serve from three to ten years in the Ohio State penitentiary. The supreme court gave him a new trial because of a legal technicality.

The man stood trial with A. E. Querineau, vice president of the defunct company, who is serving a six-to-ten year sentence in the penitentiary for embezzlement of part of the company's funds. Harvey C. Smith, former secretary of state, who stood trial with Patterson and Querineau, was freed when the jury disagreed in his case.

CLEVELAND, O., March 6.—Fire caused by an overheated furnace resulted in more than $2,000 damages here today to the home of Joseph Piterman. There children of Piterman were carried to safety from the burning house by their father.

CONGRESSMAN DIES SUDDENLY AS TRAIN NEARS WASHINGTON

Becomes Ill While Returning From Colleague's Rites

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Rep. James P. Glynn (R) of Connecticut, died suddenly this morning as a train upon which he was returning from West Virginia, approached the Union Station here.

Rep. Glynn, who was 63 years old and serving his seventh term in congress, had gone to West Virginia Tuesday as a member of the congressional funeral party to attend services for Rep. Hughes, a colleague.

About 6 o'clock this morning, according to other members of the party, the Connecticut representative complained of feeling ill and summoned aid. There was no physician aboard the train, but a telegram was hurriedly dispatched to Washington to have an ambulance at the station.

When the train arrived at the station three-quarters of an hour later, at 6:45, Rep. Glynn was dead. Physicians who met the train announced after a hurried examination that death was due to heart disease.

Rep. Glynn spent most of his adult life in public service. He was for ten years town clerk of Winsted, Conn., and later prosecuting attorney and postmaster. He came to Washington as a member of the sixty-fourth congress. He was a member of the military affairs committee.

A widow survives him.

CARRIAGE FACTORY DESTROYED BY FIRE

MARIETTA, O., March 6.—The Fred Wilking Carriage Company plant was completely destroyed by fire, preceded by a series of tremendous explosions, here today.

The loss was estimated at approximately $35,000, which is partially covered by insurance. No one was injured as the plant had not begun operations for the day when the explosions rocked the plant. Cause of the blasts has not been determined.

RATE IS LOWERED

LONDON, March 6.—The bank of England today announced the lowering of its rediscount rate from 4-1/2 per cent to 4 per cent. The action of the directors of the bank at their weekly meeting today had been expected by many and occasioned no surprise in financial circles.

HOPE OF REDUCTION DEPENDS ON FRANCE STIMSON DECLARES

Chances Of Success Fade, Statement Indicates

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The last flickering hope that the London naval conference can accomplish any real or substantial reduction in the world's actual fighting fleets faded out here today upon receipt of Secretary of State Stimson's announcement in London concerning the prospects of the gathering.

The burden of Secretary Stimson's statement was that if France can be persuaded—and it is a big if—to go along with the Anglo-American agreement framed by President Hoover and Premier MacDonald on the banks of the Rapidan last October, it will be possible to reduce the gross tonnage of the American fleet by some 200,000 tons.

On the face of this announcement, it appears to refer to the actual fighting fleet.

But on analysis, it is disclosed that the tonnage to be reduced is really obsolete and decommissioned craft, either destined for the junk-heap by the ravages of time, or now tied up and rusting at docks. Thus while the tonnage would be scrapped, the actual fighting fleet is not affected.

The American navy now has rusting away at various docks on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts more than 100,000 tons of war-built destroyers. The navy hasn't the men to man them, nor the money to operate them. The unofficial figures which accompanied the Stimson announcement noted, incidentally, a reduction of some 150,000 tons in this class of vessels.

These destroyers are slated for the junk-heap irrespective of whether the London conference succeeds or fails.

The balance of the reduction analyzed from Stimson's announcement would come through the scrapping of three battleships, the Wyoming, Utah, and Florida when they reach the retirement age next year. This would reduce the American battleship fleet to fifteen vessels, which is the figure informally agreed upon by the American and British experts for both fleets.

The United States also has some 20,000 tons of obsolete submarines ready for the scrap-heap. Some of these have already been listed for sale as junk.

To offset these reductions, however, the United States is faced with the necessity of completing the fifteen-cruiser program, and authorizing still other cruisers if parity with Great Britain is to be reached. The estimated cost of these cruisers is round $300,000,000.

Consequently, while it may be possible to junk some 20,000 tons of dead and obsolete craft, actual reduction in the figure informally agreed upon by the American and British experts for both fleets.

She came here originally from Salem, Ohio, and entered the state department in 1925. She was 30 years old, and is survived by her husband and 5-year-old son who live here.

VANDALS DESTROY BAND INSTRUMENTS

CLEVELAND, March 6.—Three boys were held by police here today as the vandals who broke into the Cathedral Latin School and wrecked and destroyed band instruments and uniforms of the school band.

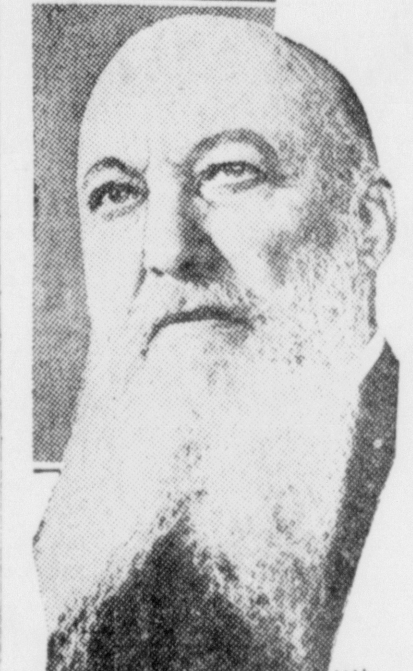

Damage done by the vandals was estimated at more than $2,000. At least twenty instruments were practically demolished. The band uniforms were cut and slashed beyond repair.

AUTO KILLS CHILD

COLUMBUS, O., March 6.—James Peck, 4 years old, is near death in Grant Hospital here today as the result of injuries which he suffered yesterday when he was struck by an automobile which was driven by J. S. Aispaugh, near his home.

A passing motorist took the boy to the hospital where an examination disclosed that he had sustained critical skull injuries. Aispaugh was questioned by police but was not held.

VON TIRPITZ IS DEAD

VON TIRPITZ IN 1926

MUNICH, Germany, Mar. 6.—Admiral Alfred P. von Tirpitz, famous German war-time naval leader died here today. The admiral died at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Death was attributed to paralysis of the heart.

The aged leader's end came in a sanitarium at Ebenhausen, just outside this city, where he had been staying for a short time because of the condition of his heart.

He recently suffered an attack of bronchitis from which he temporarily recovered but the illness left him with a chronic heart condition which necessitated his going to the sanitarium.

MURDER OF DOCTOR IS STILL BAFFLING CLEVELAND POLICE

Private Papers To Be Examined In Search For Clue

CLEVELAND, March 6.—The mysterious murder of Dr. Alfred P. Scully, 62-year-old bachelor physician, gave every indication today of going down in police annals as "the perfect crime."

After three days of intensive investigation, authorities were as much baffled today as they were three hours after the perplexing murder.

One hope remains, and that is a safety box containing the physician's private papers. The box will be opened either late today or tomorrow morning following the arrival here of J. O. Scully, California oil millionaire and brother of the slain man.

Pending the arrival of Scully, police planned today to work a systematic elimination process which it is hoped will narrow down to some clue as to the physician's murderer.

Police have well nigh exhausted their supply of motives and theories in attempting to solve the murder of Dr. Scully. None of them has seemed plausible considering the facts surrounding the slaying. The physician was shot and brutally beaten in his offices Monday night. His slayer was not seen and he was not known to have had any enemies.

Emmett J. Kelly of Niles, O., a cousin of the slain man, was in Cleveland today to look after Dr. Scully's personal effects and aid in the arrangements for the man's funeral.

FRENCH PARTY OFF FOR LONDON

PARIS, March 6.—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, director of Marine Dumont and the other members of the French delegation to the London naval conference left for London at noon today.

Premier Tardieu was at the station when they left and gave them a hearty send-off. Immediately afterwards he departed for the flooded areas in southern and central France to personally supervise relief work there.

Whether or not he will attend the meeting of the heads of the five delegations at London tomorrow hinges upon conditions in the flooded districts. If he is unable to go to London, M. Briand will take his place as head of the delegation.

TO DEPORT ALIENS

CLEVELAND, March 6.—Ten aliens were lodged in jail here today in default of $1,000 bond each following deportation hearing held yesterday before John E. Northrup, immigration inspector. The roundup, a record in immigration annals here, was the result of a drive of federal agents in checking all northern Ohio factories for persons who cannot prove citizenship or show passports.

TWENTY INJURED IN COMMUNIST RIOT IN VIENNA; MANY HELD

Arrests Anticipate Scheduled Parades Of Radicals

By I. N. S.

Attempts of Communists to stage marches in connection with the world-wide demonstrations scheduled for today, were nipped in the bud in Europe, according to reports received this morning.

Police at Vienna broke up various marches and arrested 100 of the demonstrators. Approximately 3,000 persons were gathered up in a tame demonstration earlier in the day, but no disorders were reported.

Budapest police rounded up 100 Communist leaders, who were arrested in order to check all scheduled demonstrations.

Hundreds of persons who attempted to stage a hunger march in the suburb of Bernau in the northern part of Berlin were dispersed by the police.

VIENNA, March 6.—First blood in the world-wide Communist demonstrations was drawn here today when Reds attempted to storm the Vienna University.

The Communists attacked the institution when students jeered at the demonstrators. Police charged the rioters and before the crowd could be dispersed twenty had been injured.

OFFICERS DECLARE SENSATIONAL YARN IS PUBLICITY HOAX

Youth Found Tied To Rails Tied Himself Is Belief

NEW LEXINGTON, O., March 6.—Sheriff Clifford Wilson and Prosecuting Attorney E. C. Wagner, returning here from Crooksville, after investigating the story of Frances Bernard, 22, of Gouster, that he had been slugged, robbed, then wired on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad in the face of an approaching train, today branded the story as the tale of a weak mind or one seeking notoriety.

Floyd Cannon, ambulance driver, declared that he thought Bernard was "playing possum" all the time. Then James Beamsore, who helped pick Bernard up, testified that only one of Bernard's hands was tied to the track with wire, while his feet were tied but not to the rails. The spot where Bernard was found was along an abandoned mine track where a train has not been run for three months. Neighbors in the vicinity declared that it would have been impossible for Bernard's body to have carried from an automobile and placed in the spot in daylight without being seen by passing autos, which average one every thirty seconds. Officers brand the story as a hoax perpetrated by Bernard.

STAGE OFFERS MODERN GIRL MANY OPPORTUNITIES SAYS BILLIE BURKE

(Editor's Note—Herewith is the first of two articles based on an interview with Billie Burke, the actress wife of Florenz Ziegfeld, in her winter home in Palm Beach.)

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1930 by I. N. S.)

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 6.—Billie Burke, world famous comedienne and the wife of Florenz Ziegfeld, the producer, thinks there are more opportunities for the American girl on the stage today than ever before. This is so, she said in an exclusive interview, because of the sustained interest in the legitimate theater and the development of the "talkies."

Miss Burke sat on the sun porch of her palm-shaded home on Ocean Boulevard, fronting on the Atlantic, and discussed at length the theater which she has graced for years. She is a slim, titian-haired beauty, extremely modest and a gracious hostess. She looks no more than thirty, although she is the mother of a daughter, Patricia, aged thirteen.

"I think the theater affords more opportunities today than ever before," said Miss Burke. "The theater has grown, not in grandeur, but in the number of playhouses. And look at the number of producers!"

"You cannot discountenance the motion pictures and the talkies. They offer an outlet for dramatic talent never before approached. The talkies are only in their infancy and provide a great many more opportunities than when I was trying to make good in the theater."

"We hardly realize, in this marvelous age in which we are living, what is being accomplished in the theater as a result of recent inventions. Think of the mechanical as well as a realistic progress that is being made in the talkies."

"The motion picture is so far reaching. Look at the names that have come into stardom through the agency of the movies."

Miss Burke is planning to do a "talkie" when she obtains the proper vehicle. She has appeared in silent pictures.

Good acting, in her opinion, requires "a certain vitality." She said she has no sympathy with "the lackadaisical style" of acting.

"The screen requires more of the actor or actress than does the legitimate theater," Miss Burke explained. "There is a certain thickness between the screen and the audience that has to be pierced, and only a few stars can reach it successfully bridge it."

"Take Gloria Swanson. She can. She has a rapier-like, glamorous personality that gets across from the screen to the audience and after you leave the theater you still remember her."

Miss Burke spoke proudly of her daughter and her husband. Hers is one marriage of theatrical people that has been a success. She does not believe Patricia will become an actress, but hopes she will be a musician as she seems to be musically inclined. Ziegfeld's father was a famous musician. Patricia loves the theater but her mother fears she has not "the make-believe mind."

Mr. Ziegfeld, she said, has done his best work in the last five years. This has been due to the pressure of competition which has made him strive harder. He is now 62. She pointed out the present lavishness of the Ziegfeld productions and said that when the first "Follies" was produced twenty years ago the show cost but $15,000.

Marion Davies, Billy Dove and Lillian Tashman were cited by Miss Burke as three of the most famous and accomplished actresses who at one time graced her husband's "Follies." She referred to Mr. Ziegfeld as "the wizard of the theater."

Editor's Note—In the next article Miss Burke will give her reaction to success and describe her biggest thrill while striving for stardom in the theater.)

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The way of the just is uprightness: thou, most upright, dost weigh the path of the just. Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for thee; the desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.—Isaiah, xxvi, 7, 8.

WHAT WOULD HE SAY?

In delivering their assaults on President Hoover because he performed his duty as chief executive and warned congress and the country that care and moderation must be used in authorizing public expenditure if an increase in federal taxation is to be avoided, Senators Glass and Norris and the other "gentlemen" who helped stage their oratorical display, provided a very good demonstration of the accuracy of the old saying that "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." We doubt whether hysterical churlishness has ever been better exemplified on the floor of the senate.

In the life of Daniel Webster, written by Allan L. Benson, we find this passage:

"He (Webster) liked to break an ear of corn in two and put the halves into the open mouths of two fat steers. I like to be out here feeding the stock," he said to his son, Fletcher. "I would rather be here than in the senate." Then smiling a little he added, "I think it is better company."

If Mr. Webster felt that way about the senate of his day, how would he feel and what would he say if he were alive today and had listened to the tirade emitted by Mr. Glass?

CANADIAN CLEARANCES

The prime minister of Canada has given notice of his intention to introduce in the commons a bill to amend the Canadian export act. The nature of the bill was not disclosed in the notice of motion; but the politically well informed in Ottawa surmise that this is the long promised government measure to stop the practice of issuing clearances to liquor destined for the United States.

This step was proposed by the American delegates to the last liquor conference in Ottawa and has been urged upon the government by many different elements in Canada itself. At the Liberal caucus last week it was discussed, with considerable vehemence, according to report. The fact that Mr. Mackenzie King is about to introduce it in parliament in the form of an amendment to the export act indicates that the government has overcome opposition to abolishing liquor clearances among its own followers. As there is not a little Conservative sentiment in favor of this step, a measure to effect it ought to meet with no serious obstacle in the road to enactment.

The denial of clearances to liquor for export to the United States would be a gracious and neighborly act on Canada's part, all the more so because it would be purely gratuitous. We can't ask other countries to help us to enforce our domestic legislation. When they do so voluntarily we should be ungrateful if we did not appreciate the significance of the gesture. Canada embarked upon her own noble experiment; and when it has proved a failure, as she saw it, she reverted to the sale of intoxicants under various forms of government control, adapted to the needs of the individual provinces. She did not ask the United States to amend its laws to help her enforce hers. She got out of her own mess. We seem to have started something that we can't finish, without our neighbor's assistance; indeed even with that assistance, we shall not be able to finish it unless a new national opinion is born in this country.

The Manitoba legislature is framing a law to require all automobiles in the province to be equipped with ash trays. The Manitobans apparently have some respect for their forests.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

CENSORS

Mr. Quillen, who publishes a newspaper in Fountain Inn, S. C., has this to say about censorship. "A medicine isn't necessarily a menace because it proves fatal when unwisely administered. Censorship of public prints, pictures, and plays has been foolish in many instances, but it doesn't follow that a wise censorship isn't a good thing. All decent people will agree that indecent things should be suppressed—whether books or smut—and if a censorship is necessary to suppress them, in the name of all that's holy let us have a sane censorship."

There will be many to say amen to the indignant Mr. Quillen. But who is there of us who knows what ought to be suppressed and what ought not to be? Who ever saw a man—or even a woman—wise enough to be a censor of things that are said, written, or pictured? Who, indeed, knows what is always decent and what is always indecent?

Censorship is too big for one person or for a group of persons. They don't come that smart. Here is something the people will have to decide. They, too, may be wrong, but they have the right to say.

FOGEYS

All of us above 25 are in danger of coming to be old fogies. Life moves so swiftly today that most of us get tired. Wearily we look back upon old days and old ways and think they were better. Doubtless some things in the old days were better. Most of them were not. Our problem is to click with a new and different world. If we can't click we get out of step. Out of step, we drop behind. That's the end of us. Even today's law students can't get all the truth—not nearly all of it—from old Blackstone, from whom our fathers and grandfathers learned nearly all their law.

"After all," asks Dean Green, of Northwestern University Law school, "what did Blackstone know about prohibition, air rights, zoning, motor traffic, radio, farm relief, and co-operative marketing? What did he know about corporate finance investment trusts, federal and state jurisdiction, or any of the complex problems that result from the clashing of the interests of modern people?" What indeed?

FIT AT FIFTY

At last the middle aged are objecting to being shot. Somehow the idea got going years ago that a man wasn't much good after 40. Officers and industries wanted youngsters—boys still in their twenties. Now the trend is the other way. Youth, speeded up in some ways as never before in the history of the world, can't fill the bill. It is true there is no substitute for youth, but there is no substitute for judgment, common sense, wisdom. Youth falls short here.

Instead of being fired at forty an increasing number of men are beginning to find themselves fit at fifty. From fifty to seventy are the best years. Quit your job if you want to, but don't quit to be idle. Quit to produce. If you don't think the mind improves with exercise, you are indeed hopelessly old. Exercise the mind, up one side and down the other. Playing bridge may help a little. A hard book that makes you think is better.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS
WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

Who wrote the Shakespearean plays and under what influence? This question, long contested, never has been answered to all the critics' satisfaction. Lord Bacon has his partisans; also Christopher Marlowe and various other 16th century dramatists. Or maybe Shakespeare wrote them himself. Another theory is that several authors contributed to the collection. Doubtless they were written partly for financial gain; partly from love of literary creation.

TARIFF TAXATION

When goods, on which a tariff is collected, enter the United States, who gets the money and for what is it used?

The government gets the money; it is used to pay government expenses.

BOULDER DAM

When will the government start work on Boulder dam? What employment will be available? Will it be on a civil service basis?

Although Boulder dam is a government project, the actual work will be done by private contractors, who will hire their own help. Congress has authorized the dam, but has voted no money for it yet. Until this is done, no contracts can be let. When congress will act no man can say.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES

What are some of the benefits derived by a community from a public library?

Public or private libraries afford great educational opportunities, but a public library educates the maximum number of people. A really good library is too expensive except for the quite well-to-do. Unless public facilities are afforded, the majority must do largely without. The community benefit is cultural, with all of mental culture's ramifying advantages.

MARDI GRAS

When and what is Mardi Gras? What do the words mean?

Mardi Gras is a carnival celebrated mainly in Latin countries, and in America especially in New Orleans. It falls on Shrove Tuesday (a variety of Lent, is treated as a farewell feast), and, as the last day of the festival preceding a period of self-denial. The name (French) means "Fat Tuesday"—Mardi: Tuesday; gras: fat—from the French custom of parading a fat ox as part of the festivities.

WILLIAM E. GLADSTONE

What was the date of Gladstone's death? Was he a member of parliament?

Gladstone died May 19, 1893. He was for many years a member of parliament, as all members of the British cabinet, of which he was repeatedly the head, are required to be, in order to accept their portfolios.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NOW, WHAT KIND?

NEW YORK CITY, New York — A critic was talking to a theatrical producer.

"That's a beautiful show you've got," he said. "It must have cost a fortune—and the money was well spent; but it strikes me as too bad you didn't squander a little more money on jokesmiths. All that show needs is some new jokes."

"Such as?" inquired the producer. And then the conversation became general.

A SUCCESS STORY

Some 15 years ago, on a little side street, a Yankee Scotchman ran a delicatessen store. One of his hobbies was making a fine mayonnaise which he sold to the neighborhood. Then he outgrew the neighborhood. Later he hired a horse and wagon and pretty soon he had three. Six months ago he sold his entire business for something over two million dollars—all in the space of 15 years.

His mayonnaise was good, of course, but his advertising methods were better.

BOLLWEEVILS

Most frequenters of night clubs are mild-mannered, even timid at times, in their attitude toward the waiters and management. But every night club has its list of trouble makers who, once ousted by the strong-arm squad are not to be allowed to return on any pretext.

At the Cotton Club they have a special name for these pests. They call 'em The Bollweevils.

DINNER STORIES

WELL TRAINED

"So you have just got another parrot, Mr. Jones?"

"Yes, my wife had one so I thought I would get one."

"Do they talk?"

"Rather! My wife says, 'You have dropped some ash on the carpet,' and mine says, 'The bacon is burnt again!'"

ANOTHER COMMUNISTIC EXPERIMENT THAT IS BEING WATCHED WITH INTEREST

Diplomats Appointment Surprise Because of Ford's Recommendation

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Herman Bernstein, the newspaper man recently chosen by President Hoover to be minister to Albania, was recommended for the job by Henry Ford, they say.

If anyone previously doubted that wonders never will cease, this ought to convince him that they have not ceased yet, at all events.

In the first place, Herman was a prominent delegate on the Detroit billiard's well-known peace expedition in 1915-16. The auto king has shown few signs hitherto that he remembered his companions on that trip with feelings of gratitude and affection. Moreover, next after S. S. McClure, the magazine man, Herman probably had most to do in transforming the peace tour into the three-ringed circus which it turned out to be.

That was not all, either; a few years ago the newly-fledged diplomat of today was on the verge of suing the mass production magnate, on account of the latter's anti-Jewish utterances in his Dearborn Independent.

Col. McClure (we all called him "colonel") and Herman Bernstein were complementary spirits on the Ford peace expedition.

The colonel needed Herman and Herman needed the colonel. The colonel furnished the gunpowder which blew the expedition to bits and Herman tossed the lighted match into the keg.

Shortly before the hour set for the Oscar II (the peace ship) to sail from Hoboken the mail carrier delivered at Colonel McClure's magazine office in New York an advance copy of the "preparedness speech" President Wilson expected to deliver in congress a few days later.

Starting for the pier, the colonel, who had been invited to go along (the god Mars would have been fully as suitable, for a peace expedition) stuck the pamphlet in his pocket, to look over at his leisure.

The address was labeled "release for publication" about the time the Osceola was due to be 48 hours or thereabouts off Sandy Hook, at the start of a long voyage—with 14 days ahead for bedlam to go, uninterrupted in the narrow confines of a smallish liner, where the crowded together ingredients in the ferment could not get away from one another to cool off, no matter how hard they tried.

At the prescribed moment the colonel arose and read the president's message aloud to the assembled peace delegation.

Except that the weather was rough, everything had been lovely up to that point. The delegates were gathered in the main cabins discussing their "out of the trenches by Christmas" program. Barring a certain amount of sea sickness, perfect harmony reigned. All hands assumed that all other hands were 100 per cent pacifistic.

But "preparedness!"—in that atmosphere!

Resolutions were promptly drafted, roasting President Wilson to a cinder. The wireless operator was summoned, to flash this denunciation homeward immediately. All present were called on to sign, in token of the whole outfit's absolute unanimity.

At this juncture Herman Bernstein balked.

Not only that; he sounded a clarion appeal to all on board, who thought as he did, not to jump on the president.

While a man of peace, he said, "We must speak of today's conditions in terms of today"—which he insisted was just what President Wilson was doing. Even for an innocent bystander, he argued, preparedness was judicious, with a pretty nearly world-wide war going on.

Out of 200 or 300 people there always is a contingent which is liable to be impressed by one kind of a clarion appeal as by another. A sizeable group flopped instantly to Herman's views.

In fact, a number of them, once started, could Herman and began to clamor for gore. (It was a temperamental aggregation.)

Thereupon Louis Lochner, of the expedition's managing committee, intimated that those who felt so war-like evidently had joined the party purely for a "joy ride"—which was true of at least half of them.

Mr. Lochner further suggested abandoning all recalcitrants at the first European port. Inasmuch as a majority, depending on Henry Ford to pay all the bills, had sailed with not to exceed 514 apiece in ready money and were in no financial position to be marooned abroad, this started a terrific outcry.

Herman, standing pat in the face of tremendous pressure to make him yield, summoned a rump convention in another cabin, where counter-resolutions were adopted. Ford himself vetoed an attempt

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

BUMBLE-BEE AND BUTTER-FLY FLEE

When Peter peered cautiously down at the earth from between Dragon-Fly's wings they were flying over a field of clover. The clover, bobbing their heads in greeting to the flyers, sent them a gift of sweet perfume by special messenger. The breeze. The clover field bordered a road that looked like a ribbon trailing through green fields, and Peter saw a man driving some cows home to be milked along this road. Dragon-Fly left these far behind. Peter heard a buzzing. Louder and louder it grew until his ears it seemed almost a roar. What was up now? Peter took his eyes from the earth to search the skies above him.

"Ha! Who comes there?" he shouted. Before Dragon-Fly could answer, a second Dragon-Fly half as large again as Peter's steed passed them, waving a friendly greeting. It wasn't long before Peter caught sight of another fellow flyer coming their way. This fellow was no stranger.

"Hello, Bumble-Bee!" cried the boy.

"Hello!" replied Bumble-Bee, but his voice sounded muffled. As if he were afraid, thought the boy, and noticed that Bumble-Bee picked up speed, as he lumbered by them.

The old fellow must be in a terrible hurry," remarked Peter to Dragon-Fly. "Wonder if anything is wrong. Usually the sociable fellow stops to chat for a moment!"

"Huh!" Peter could feel Dragon-Fly's slender body shaking with laughter. "There's nothing wrong with Bumble-Bee—yet! He's just afraid there might be if he lingered near me. He's afraid I might bump into him and snap his fat head off."

"Of all things," began Peter, but never finished what he was going to say, for just at that second he glimpsed a beautiful blue and yellow butterfly flying toward them. Again Dragon-Fly chuckled.

"Watch Butterfly skim past!" shrieked he. "He'll wing it for his life! He's afraid of me!"

Dragon-Fly was right. Butterfly waved his wings wildly, right-about-faced, and flew away from Dragon-Fly as fast as he could scurry.

Meat Loaf Brown Gravy
Franconia Potatoes
Braised Onions
Shredded Cabbage Salad
Pineapple Bavarian Cream
This is a dinner menu simple enough for the inexperienced bride to plan and execute, so to speak. The recipes are given.

Today's Recipes

Meat Loaf—Two pounds round steak, one-half pound salt pork, one onion chopped, one cup diluted tomato soup, one egg unbeaten, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon black pepper. Put steak and pork through the food chopper twice. Mix with other ingredients. Pack into a greased loaf pan, to give it its shape. Then turn out into a greased pan. Brown quickly in a hot oven, 450, for about 15 minutes, then turn down the heat to moderate, 350. Bake one and one-half hours in all.

Pineapple Bavarian Cream—Two cups grated pineapple with juice, one and one-half tablespoons granulated gelatin, two-thirds cup sugar, juice one lemon, one-half pint cream, whipped. Soften the gelatin in one-half cup cold water and dissolve the pineapple which has been heated. Add sugar and lemon juice. Chill and when it begins to stiffen beat with an egg beater and fold in the whipped cream. Pour into a mold which has been dipped in cold water (this makes the unmolding easier). Chill. To unmold run a sharp knife around the edge of the mold, then dip bottom and sides of the mold in lukewarm water for a few minutes. Serve with whipped cream and top with green minted cherries.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

"Dear Doctor:—My daughter, two and one-half years old, has been troubled with constipation since birth. If I give her two teaspoonsful of mineral oil daily, it will keep her regular, but this, along with her cod liver oil, seems to upset her. Her diet includes orange juice, prunes, spinach, onions, etc. I know an adult who takes sauerkraut juice for constipation, and I thought I would try it out on my daughter. I gave her three teaspoonsful before meals for a week and she had two movements daily; also she had a better appetite. But I decided to stop giving it to her until I heard from you. Do you think it could do her any harm?"

"Mrs. A" (the anti-neuritic and appetite-stimulating vitamin) and in vitamin C (the anti-scurvy vitamin). Fresh, raw, green cabbage is high in vitamin A also.

Sauerkraut is a wholesome food, because it is made from cabbage. The fresh shredded cabbage is packed down with salt and is allowed to ferment. In Russia, I read, they also add vinegar to it. The fermentation apparently does not destroy the vitamins so much as prolonged boiling does.

Ordinary constipation in both children and adults may be due to many factors, and among them are lack of sufficient bulk, and lack of sufficient vitamins, especially the appetite-stimulating vitamin B. In the sauerkraut juice, there would be no bulk, but there are vitamins, and it is valuable for that, but not so valuable as the raw cabbage for those who can take that. The sauerkraut juice, on account of the salt that is used, has a rather high percentage of salt, and its laxative action depends also upon this. I wouldn't consider it advisable to give so much sauerkraut juice to a child as you do, Mrs. A. It would be much better to increase the amount of vegetables and fruits in your little girl's diet, until she takes one and one-half cups a day. And are you also giving her the coarse whole grain breads and cereals? They are superior for all the minerals and vitamins and best grade of protein are not milled away.

The child will always be constipated so long as you continue to give her something artificial to promote peristalsis. Mrs. A. The habitual use of mineral oil is not advisable, especially in large amounts, for experimentally it has been shown to abstract the fat-soluble vitamins A and D, and as the oil is not absorbed, these vitamins are lost.

Remember that after you stop the use of any artificial means to stimulate peristalsis, it may be two or three days before natural movements will occur. If necessary, give a small enema, but do not go back to the cathartics.

We have an article on Constipation, and a list of books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have. See column rules.

Mrs. R: So long as you keep massaging your breasts, after you have weaned the baby, they will continue to secrete milk. Wear supporting brassiere and let them alone. Don't have an over-full diet.

This condition will have no effect on your future baby, stop worrying about that.

We have an article on the Diet during Pregnancy and Nursing which you may have.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a constant reader of your wonderful column. Now I'm coming for some help. We have been married for almost four years and have a son that will be three years old the 10th of July.

"We loved each other more than anything on earth until the last six months. I found out not so long ago, when the trouble started, my husband's father and he blame me for stealing his money. Now what would you do if you were in my place? I think I'll just go crazy without my daddy. I am sitting here crying writing you this letter."

"A CONSTANT READER."

I certainly think it is pretty poor business for two older men—or any one else—to interfere between a young couple with a little child and cause a separation. Can't you take your case to a court of domestic relations or a similar court, at my lawyer, your county seat, or to your minister, and have him or the judge talk to your husband and try to make him see how wrong he is to believe him father and employer and to break up his home on the way so?

He would have to provide for the little boy and for you. It is damnable for men to lie about a woman and make her so unhappy. You could bring suit for slander if you wished, but that is an expensive and bad business and I would avoid it if possible.

I am glad you wrote to me and do so again if it relieves your heart. Don't let them down you. You know you are all right, and if you have to lose your husband because of all he has done up your mind that he is well lost and you will hold your boy. And you'll be happy, too.

LONELY AND BLUE: Your boy friend's actions don't look so good to me. Undoubtedly being out of work, or practically out, makes a difference in his attitude. He would not want to be serious with a girl when he has nothing to offer. However, he shouldn't go with other boys and expect you to give up other boys. I'd go out with others, if I were you, and let him see that you are independent.

J. A. S.: If you and the widow whom you love really care for one another, and you can take care of such a large family and you think all the children can get along, happily, your money and don't pay any attention to outsiders who want to separate you. Both you and the woman you love have a big job on your hands and more power to you if you can manage it well, say I.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

WITH the line you achieve in your clothing you can do a great deal to make your figure appear very much as you wish it to.

You can correct your faults, emphasize your good points, add a few necessary pounds, or take them away. There are four lines you must be careful of. First, the neck or collar line; second, the waistline; third the hemline, and fourth the line of your sleeves.

Of course there are frequently lines between lines especially just now when fashion seems uncertain of her own dominance. At one of the openings the other day I saw one gown had three divisions between the neck and the hem. Needless to say, it requires a perfect figure to hazard any such fashion.

Here is a general rule in selecting clothing lines that becomes you. Lines similar, instead of in opposition to the lines of the figure, sign. Line: in contradiction to those of the figure, unless very carefully handled, are likely to exaggerate defects in the figure. Trimmings, pleurms, ruffles in the wrong places, frequently result in the use of distracting lines in total contradiction to the main line of the gown and the best line of the figure.

In general, remember that the horizontal line cuts your height and apparently broadens your girth. The vertical line, if taken in small doses, adds length and slenderness. I have qualified the above statement not because it ever fails to create that impression, but because the short woman can very easily appear absurd if she gives in to too heartily to these new ankle length dresses.

I see a tendency on the part of a great many American women to either accept them without ever the reservation which their common sense should dictate. I am glad to find that the American buyers are doing very serious thinking in the matter of the new styles, and I think you will find the spring and summer clothes much to your liking.

Hemlines are even, except for evening and the most noticeable difference here is in their lengthening to sweeping trains. A train, incidentally, is charming on a slim, tall figure. The short woman should never wear it, for it makes her appear ludicrous. The longer dresses add slenderness and if the heavier woman exercises intelligence in regard to the waistline, she will find the new fashions most attractive and becoming to her.

Although Paris still says "natural waistlines," I have been delighted to note that many lovely afternoon gowns have not waistline at all but are gathered, tightly, just above the hips, thus forming a rather low, slightly bloused effect.

Suit these new styles to yourself instead of forcing yourself to suit them. Remember that line is more important than ever, and see that by selecting clothes with dominant horizontal lines, if you are thin or vertical ones if you are not, you achieve the result which should be a paramount issue regardless of the vogue

Central Gets Tournament Test On Friday Spring

SPRINGFIELD GAME FRIDAY MORNING IS AWAITED BY LOCALS

The zero hour nears for Xenia Central High's basketball quintet, which will meet the Springfield Wildcats for the second time this season in the first round of the Southwestern sectional Class A tournament at the Dayton coliseum Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the second game on the morning program.

The Buccaneers are accorded an even chance to win their first round game and enter the second round. If this happens Xenia will play again at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, facing the winner of the Dayton Kiser-Dayton Chamaine contest.

Either Kiser or Chamaine would prove a difficult opponent if comparative scores against Dayton Stivers mean anything. Stivers beat Xenia, 38 to 11, defeated Chamaine, 33 to 14 and Kiser beat Xenia about 40 to 27 during the regular season.

Pairings for the first round in the Class A division are as follows: Friday Games, Class A 9:00 a. m.—Piqua (2) vs. Greenville (3).

10:00 a. m.—Springfield (4) vs. Xenia (5).
11:00 a. m.—Kiser (6) vs. Chamaine (7).
12:00 p. m.—Try (9) vs. Stivers (10).
2:00 p. m.—Bellefontaine (11) vs. Fairview (12).
3:00 p. m.—Sidney (13) vs. Xenia (5).

Four Greene County entries in the sectional Class B tournament at Springfield Friday and Saturday drew strong opponents for their first round games Friday afternoon and may not survive their opening games.

Under ordinary circumstances, Ross Twp., champion Class B team of Greene County, might have good chance to defeat Olive Branch, Clark County champion, in its opening tournament game at 4 o'clock, but with Jerome Pittsick, star forward, unable to play because of an injured ankle, the outlook is black for the local entry.

Olive Branch has a record of fifteen victories and three defeats for the season, having scored 553 points against 357 for opponents. Ross with nineteen victories and three defeats, is credited with 685 points and was scored on for 394 points.

Spring Valley, runnerup for the Greene County title, will be called upon to face St. Paris, champion of Champaign County for four straight years, and a heavy favorite to capture tournament honors. This game will be played at 3 p. m. St. Paris has lost only two games in nineteen starts this season and has scored 814 points to 388 for opponents. Anna and London High which defeated the Saints by two-point margins earlier in the season, were later swamped in return games.

Osborn Bath, a third Greene County entry, and Concord, also of Champaign County, considered two of the strongest teams entered, face each other in the opening round at 5 p. m. while the S. and S. O. Home, Xenia, meets DeGraff, of Logan County, at 2 p. m.

PUBLISHER URGES
CHOICE OF WIDOW

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 6.—Dave Gideon, prominent local publisher, today urged members of the Democratic and Republican congressional committees to agree upon Mrs. A. Hughes, widow of Congressman Hughes who was buried yesterday with impressive ceremonies, as his successor for his unexpired term.

Gideon said that such an action would not only be a "graceful gesture" to Mrs. Hughes but would also save the taxpayers approximately $150,000 for holding a special election.

YOUTH ENDS LIFE

ATHENS, O., March 6.—The body of Byron Sayers, 18-year-old high school student of Millfield, was found on Ridge Road, two miles from Millfield, today.

County officials, who started an investigation of the death, stated that it was a probable suicide, although a thorough probe had not been completed, and many of the details were withheld.

SPRING VALLEY HIGH ENJOYED SUCCESSFUL SEASON ON COURT

Despite the fact it was unsuccessful in its quest for a second straight championship in the recent Greene County Class B basketball tournament, Spring Valley High's basketball team, winner of the 1929 tournament, experienced a most satisfactory season on the court, winning fifteen games and sustaining only two defeats.

Starting off the season with two victories, Spring Valley dropped its third scheduled contest to Bellbrook, 22 to 17, but thereafter Coach Lane's quintet annexed thirteen straight games. The winning streak was broken when Ross Twp. emerged victorious in the county tournament finals, 20 to 17.

Spring Valley displayed great offensive power, collecting 547 points against 300 points obtained by opposing teams in the seventeen games. In only four games did opposing quintets score more than twenty points.

The equality of individual scoring among members of the team was also unusual. Turner, all-county guard, topped the team's scoring with 103 points, one more than credited to Crites, flashy forward. For a guard to lead a team in scoring is almost unique because of fewer opportunities to shoot than a forward generally receives.

Smith, another forward, collected 100 points, followed by Leshner, center, with eighty and Huff, guard, with sixty.

Spring Valley's record for the season follows:

Spring V. 11—Jamestown 4.
Spring V. 39—Caesarcreek 18.
Spring V. 17—Bellbrook 22.
Spring V. 45—Beaver 13.
Spring V. 55—O. S. & S. O. 10.
Spring V. 21—Jamestown 18.
Spring V. 32—Kingman 18.
Spring V. 22—Bath 20.
Spring V. 36—O. S. & S. O. 12.
Spring V. 65—Bowersville 21.
Spring V. 29—Pittsick 17.
Spring V. 37—Bellbrook 16.
Spring V. 35—Bryan 28.
Spring V. 44—Caesar 29.
Spring V. 18—Bowersville 16.
Spring V. 17—Ross 20.*

Port William's independent basketball team suffered its worst defeat of the current season when it lost to the Bowersville Leopards by the top-heavy margin of 68 to 32 Tuesday night on the Bowersville floor. Sixty-eight points is the largest score recorded by Bowersville this season.

The victory avenged a previous defeat which Port William handed the spotted boys earlier in the season on the Port William floor. Scoring twenty-six points, Fox, forward, was high scorer of the game, while Brown, Bowersville center, tallied sixteen. The lineups:

Home was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin at 5:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A new order of mixed feed valued at $150 was also consumed by the flames but a large number of hogs were driven out of the structure to safety. The blaze gained headway rapidly and although the Xenia Fire Department sent a hose truck to the institution, lack of water prevented efforts to fight the fire and the old frame structure burned to the ground. The nearest water plug was a quarter of a mile distant and it would have been necessary to bring all the department's apparatus to the Home in order to provide sufficient hose length to connect with the plug. Captain Harold Hays, Home superintendent, could not estimate the loss.

"FIRST A SHADOW, then a sorrow"

(Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, 1807-1882)

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—men who would keep that trim, proper form, eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the lithe, youthful, modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

LENT SEASON OPENS IN XENIA CHURCHES WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Explanations of Lent and the virtues entailed in the designation of a period of meditation, prayer and sacrifice were given by the Rev. Carl Nybladh, rector of Christ Episcopal Church and the Rev. David Powers, pastor of St. Brigid Catholic Church in Ash Wednesday evening services that opened the Lenten season in these churches Wednesday night.

The distribution of the ashes was a feature of service at St. Brigid Church at Wednesday morning mass and again at the evening service, when the Rev. Father Powers read the epistle read in the mass of Wednesday, including the second chapter from the prophet Joel and urged the faithful to careful observance of the Lenten season.

The Rev. Father Powers explained that the ashes used in the distribution are made from palms of the last Palm Sunday, which then were a symbol of the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem. "The church appoints us with the sign of the cross to remind us of the swiftness of time, and the uselessness of our efforts to serve to forget Christ or forget to serve Him," he said. "She calls upon us to meditate upon the great eternal truths insofar as they affect our immortal soul." The Rev. Father Powers explained that as the ashes are distributed the priest repeats the Scriptural words, "Remember, oh man, that thou art dust and unto dust thou shalt return."

Services at St. Brigid Church will be repeated each Wednesday evening and on Sunday and Friday evenings during Lent and the period is also one of special fasting and abstinence to be observed by all the faithful.

"The season of Lent reminds us that we should live Christ-like lives not to show other people but to enable them to see the light without being told," said the Rev. Mr. Nybladh in his sermon opening the Lenten season at Christ Episcopal Church. The Rev. Mr. Nybladh gave his hearers a definition of Lent as it applies to the ecclesiastical calendar and pointed out that it is a period of prayer and meditation that should be followed by all the faithful. He urged upon his congregation however, the duty of carrying on the Lenten way of life throughout the year.

Next Wednesday the Rev. Mr. Nybladh will begin a series of instructions upon the new Book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal Church and will explain the tenets of the Episcopal religion. This series will be continued throughout Lent and the church is extending a welcome to visitors during these Lenten services. A solo by Mrs. Willard Bennington was a feature of the services Wednesday evening.

Women of the parish began a study course of the "The World Mission of Christianity" at the home of Mrs. Louise Sandoe Wednesday afternoon, and this series of devotions will be continued through Lent on every Wednesday afternoon.

A program of services in observance of Lent is also being prepared by the Rev. Adrian G. Lebold, pastor of the First Lutheran Church, and will be announced later. Churches of the city are planning to unite for Holy Week observance.

PENNSY DENIES CHANGE IN SPRINGFIELD ROUTE; ADMITS DOUBLE TRACKS

Admitting that some double tracking is contemplated in Ohio, directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Philadelphia Wednesday refused to reveal whether this program will affect Xenia or trackage in the Xenia area.

Interviewed by International News Service at the request of THE GAZETTE, directors said "some double tracking will be done in Ohio." Because all the property necessary for the expansion program has not been purchased, they would not reveal their plans further.

The plans will not be revealed until all the land rights necessary are bought, directors said at the conference which was called regarding the proposed projects. This paper sought information concerning the double tracking program because of insistent rumors that the railroad intended to double track its right of way on the Richmond, Ind. line west from Xenia to Richmond.

Rumors that the railroad would remove the tracks of its Springfield branch line from Detroit St. were also denied by officials of the company at Philadelphia. Persistent rumors circulated here have indicated that the road contemplated this change because of the increase of traffic due to its new connection with the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad at Springfield.

Because the purchase of the Henry Ford road gives the Pennsylvania a more direct freight and passenger outlet from Cincinnati through Xenia to Toledo and Detroit, it has been rumored that the railroad would find it necessary to double track its lines from Springfield to Xenia and would change its route to pass around Xenia to reach the station rather than run through the center of the city, as at present. The official denial should set at rest rumors circulated here that this program is contemplated.

GIRL SCOUTS of America

All leaders are requested to meet at Post Hall, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. A new Girl Scout troop is being organized at Spring Hill School by Miss Elizabeth Hardy.

LEAVES $100,000

LO SANGELES, March 6.—Although it will take several days for inheritance appraisers to make an accurate check of the estate left by Miss Mabel Normand, it was believed today that it will exceed $100,000. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Normand, of New York, was named sole heir.

DEATH BED FORGIVENESS GIVES EX-XENIAN SHARE IN ESTATE

A death-bed reconciliation with her father, has earned for Mrs. John W. Guilday, Pittsburgh, Pa., former Xenian, a share in his estate estimated to amount to approximately $25,000.

As death approached, Joseph S. McKinley, 58, Cincinnati, extended forgiveness to his daughter, Mrs. Margaret McKinley Guilday, 1659 Potomac Ave., Dormont, Pittsburgh, Pa., and is said to have requested that his will cutting Mrs. Guilday out with $10 be ignored, and that she be given her equal share.

Three other surviving children, acting on their father's wishes, refused their legacies in Hamilton County Probate Court and advised Judge W. H. Leuders that they wished their sister to share equally in the estate. Their decision was made without solicitation from Mrs. Guilday, press dispatches say, and demonstrated the old saying that "blood is thicker than water."

McKinley was president of the McKinley Lithographic Supply Co., and of the McKinley Machinery Co., of Cincinnati, and died at the Palace Hotel, Cincinnati, March 1. He was also an inventor of considerable note. His estate is valued at $100,000 including stock in his companies.

When his daughter Margaret married six years ago without his consent, news dispatches say, father and daughter became estranged and he executed the will which barred her from a share in his estate. Thirty-six hours before his death, learning that her father was ill, Mrs. Guilday visited him and the reconciliation was effected.

In the presence of the three other children and of Carl W. Rich, attorney for the estate who drew the will, McKinley said: "I forgive you everything, everything; tell the world I forgive you." His condition was too serious to change his will, drawn February 11, but the other children decided to adjust the matter out of court.

The other children are: Clarence McKinley, Norwood, vice president of the two companies of which his father was head; Glenn McKinley, Washington, D. C., American Telephone and Telegraph Co., engineer and Mrs. Eldora Vornel, secretary to Dr. Herman Schneider, president of the University of Cincinnati. Mrs. Guilday's husband is John W. Guilday, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Guilday, formerly of Xenia, and now of Milford. She was known by many Xenians at the time of her marriage, Mr. Guilday is a civil engineer connected with a Pittsburgh company.

who has been getting the store ready for occupancy.

The branch will handle the local company's line of wall paper, paints and glass and will be managed by George N. Egleston, Springfield, formerly in charge of the wall paper department of the Wren department store in that city.

Mark Smith will have charge of the paint department with Frank Gilman in charge of the glass department. William O. Graham, secretary-treasurer of the company, a brother of Fred F. Graham, will also be affiliated with the concern. A complete line of new stock has been installed and everything is in readiness for the formal opening. The store, attractively decorated with a profusion of flowers and with music being furnished will be open for public inspection. Souvenirs will also be given to visitors.

LITTLE MARCELLA

A Versatile Impersonator, Miss Shields Has Done Many Roles On Ether

MARCELLA SHIELDS

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, March 6.—Little Marcella Shields sat on a divan in the corridor outside the studio looking fresh and young in a plain dark blue dress and hat. Her hair is straight and brown and her eyes grayish-blue. And she has a voice like a small child trying to wheedle its mamma out of a lolly pop.

Well, anyway, what we started out to say was that Marcella sat on a divan looking young and fresh and inexperienced. Our pencil, poised for copy, had little hope of having the point worn out taking notes about a little slip of a girl that looked fresh and young and talked as if she were a child.

Her Biography

Here are notes undisturbed. It reads like a page from "Who's Who." We are not going to garish it. It is the unadorned biog of Marcella whom you will soon hear again as the dumb bell in "Two Troopers," with Helen Handen.

Born in New York City. Has three sisters. Educated at Holy Name convent and had four months at Miss Mason's School at Tarrytown, New York. Irish father and French-Irish mother.

Went on the stage at the age of four. Played "Michael" with Mando Adams in "Peter Pan." In stock for years. Met a friend on the street who urged her to try radio after two stage flops. Hemmed and hawed around and said she didn't think much of radio. Had an audition that day and was on a nationwide net-work two days later.

Doubled for Jeanne Arthur's voice in her first Paramount movie with Richard Dix in "Warming Up." Also was the voice you thought was Colleen Moore in "Lilac Time." That should surprise you. So should the fact that she gabbed for Phyllis Haver in "Battle of the Sexes." Says it is awful having to watch the screen and do lip reading and go back and do the dialogue intelligently to fit the silent talking of the actress.

Has played with George Arliss—and a long list of Broadway stars too numerous to mention. Was with Rudy Vallee seven weeks and says he is not such a much of a sheik. (As all the girls who have talked with him a few times seem to hold as their consensus.) But just a nice boy, Marcella says. Not high-bat.

Among the roles you have heard Marcella do in the ether are in the "Dixie Circus" with Phil Carlin, "Anna" in "The James's," "Mamie Potter" in "The Potters," "Dixie Dugan" in "Show Girl," "Alice Through the Looking Glass" in the "Miniature Theater," and others.

Versatile Impersonator

The versatile impersonator does children from four years up, English, Irish, Jewish, French, and southern dialect—or straight roles. Did an impersonation of Walter Damrosch and has repeated it twice since by popular request.

Last—but not the least—writes her own material for the greater number of her roles, including the popular "Two Troopers."

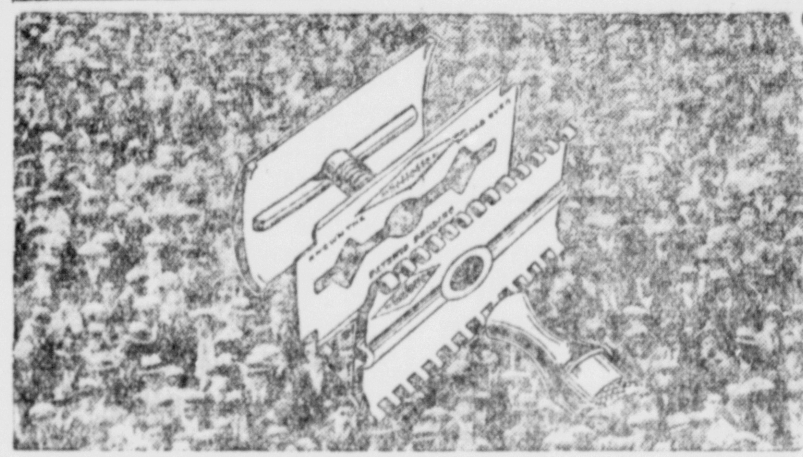

Is twenty-six and looks eighteen. Conrad is her favorite author. Her pert nose was buried in one of his books when we found her in the corridor curled up on a divan.

Never has been married. Talks fast and fascinatingly of her hectic, colorful career on the Great White Way.

The Carpenter
Had A Dollar

He spent it at the HARDWARE store
It then passed hands at the TIRE SHOP door.
Next it bought a pie at the BAKERY SHOP,
To the COAL DEALER'S till it then took a hop.
From here it went to a CLOTHING store
And to a home DRUGGIST it then was turned o'er.
The druggist straight to the BARBER SHOP went,
With a skilled PLUMBER the bill was next spent,
And he passed it on for an AUTO brand new.
The auto man's wife to the BEAUTY SHOP flew
The dollar from here to the DRY GOODS STORE sailed
The GROCERYMAN was the next one it hailed
At his BUTCHER'S SHOP it lay in the till
'Till a FARMER had pigs just ready to kill.
Then 'twas paid to the DOCTOR, kind and good
Who served that rural neighborhood.
The doctor ate a RESTAURANT meal
And the bill next closed a REAL ESTATE deal
The real estate man wrote a NEWSPAPER ad
To tell of the wonderful bargains he had
And this SAME dollar from till to till Paid the bills and carried GOOD WILL
And helped to make XENIA'S people glad
For all the GOOD THINGS they have had.
Until SOME one—we're sad to say
Forgot this dollar HERE should stay
And spent it where on that very DAY
The DOLLAR BILL WAS SHIPPED FAR AWAY
No more will it pay OUR local bills
Or help to cure OUR people's ills.
Nor pave OUR streets nor build OUR schools
Or help OUR farmers buy their tools.
IT'S GONE FOREVER, and is working today
To build some GREAT CITY far away.
So please HEED this story told in rhyme
And KEEP THE DOLLAR AT HOME next time.

CHAPTER LI

"When I saw the motorboat," continued Captain Lee, "I hurried to Mr. Johnson's room. He was just coming out. We met the two engineers, Mr. Banks, the wireless operator, and the steward in the gallery. Mr. Banks is up sending out a report now. Then I rushed down to the cabin, called to everybody to get dressed at once, I pounded on your door but got no answer until Miss Blair came. Look at that hole over the top of the lower berth. That accounts for the bruise on this young man's head. This room is nearest of any to the lazarette where the bomb went off!"

Rex, having finished his own dressing, gave the captain a hand with Jimmy. As anyone knows who has ever tried it, the dressing of an unconscious man from under clothes to socks and shoes is no easy matter for one person to accomplish alone.

"Gather up what valuables you can stow in your pockets, Mr. Dillard," advised the captain. "We've no idea yet, as I told you, how badly the yacht is damaged. We may have to leave it in a hurry. In that case—well, there's just two small boats and a raft, you know!"

The situation, as Captain Lee discovered upon reaching the main deck and getting the engineer's report, was more than serious. It was distinctly ominous.

"I've got all the pumps a-going," said the engineer. "But there's a hole blown clean through her stern that is impossible to reach and the inflow of water will sink the boat in twenty minutes!"

The explosion, he went on to state, was the work of an infernal machine or a big bomb planted, probably, close to the rudder post with a wire leading forward to be fired electrically.

"Paulson could easily have fixed it," he declared. "And I recall now seeing him talking yesterday to that fellow, Pete, whom you locked up last night!"

Captain Lee stepped over to the head of the cabin stairs and called to Pat and her guests for all to come up on deck at once. When they were assembled, Rex and the doctor having carried Jimmy up, the captain explained the need for immediate action.

"These two small boats are all we have left," he told them. "These and the life raft. We depended entirely upon the motorboat. Each of these two boats will carry, in an emergency, and in still water, eight full grown persons. But no more. Nine would sink either one. That has been demonstrated. Fortunately the sea is perfectly calm this morning. Daylight will break in a very few minutes. But the engineer says the yacht cannot stay afloat more than twenty minutes at the longest. So we have no time to lose. There are nine in your party and there are ten of the crew. Mister Johnson and I will take the raft. We have already decided upon that. It is up to you now to decide which one among you will go with us. If we make the attempt to reach shore with nine in your boat we will all drown—or, well, these waters are simply alive with man-eating sharks! A swimmer couldn't be in the water three minutes without being caught! I'm giving you the cold facts because this is no time to mince matters! You must decide immediately which man takes to the raft with us. The first of the boats to reach the shore is to return for us immediately."

"I'll stay," said Dillard, quietly and calmly, as he stepped out away from the others. His face was white and his mouth was set in grim lines. He didn't look at Pat. As he stepped out, however, she gave a convulsive little cry, instantly suppressed. Her face, too, was like chalk. But she uttered no word of protest. She was too good a soldier to whimper in the face of death.

"No," spoke up Dr. Gordon, stepping quickly across to the side of Captain Lee and facing his friends. "I am the one to stay! There is no one dependent upon me for support nor to grieve for me if we can't make shore on the raft."

"Well, then," said the captain, speaking fast for him, "if that's the case we'll get busy!"

He turned to the first officer. "You'll get the boat launched for Miss Blair and her party, Mister Johnson," he instructed the mate. "Mister Banks—" to the wireless operator—"please attend to the crew's boat!"

"God will reward you, Doctor Frank!" Aunt Lottie told him, the tears streaming down her cheeks. "You are a brave, noble man to take the risk. And you two men, also!" she went on, turning to the captain and Mister Johnson.

"I'll never forget—Frank," Pat said between her sobs after she had kissed her old friend, the man who had loved her. "This act of yours," she told him, "will remain always fragrant and sweet in my memory!"

"You are risking your lives for us, Captain Lee, you three men," she said. "We cannot, of course, recompense you in person. But you may know, both Mr. Johnson and you, that your families will be well taken care of in any event."

As the crew's boat was being lowered the rosy fingers of the tropical dawn began reaching up into the sky from out of the eastern horizon. In another minute the sun's fiery red rim burst into view. Another day had dawned.

The launching of the two boats and the raft occupied less than five minutes. But in that five minutes the yacht had dropped down in the water so that her main deck, normally eight feet above the surface, was now less than four feet.

The boat contained the eight members of the crew, the steward, chef and cook, the two engineers. Mr. Banks and the two cabin boys got away first, the men rowing some distance from the yacht, where they came to a stop and waited.

The other boat was lowered by the dead falls to a level of the raft opening. Pat and her friends were then instructed to seat themselves, which all did with the exception of Rex Dillard. He helped to place Jimmy in the boat's bottom so that Pat could hold his head in her lap.

The Theater

Claudette Colbert, the French-American actress who is making good in the talkies, was the subject of a sketch by that clever young writer, Radie Harris in this paper yesterday but Radie modestly refrained from mentioning one of Miss Colbert's best claims to greatness—her legs.

Despite her physical attractions, and a bottle of milk for lunch when working. She reads Voltaire, has never seen a prize fight but has seen bull fights. She is superstitious off stage but not on. Speaking of the French girls your correspondent wants to cast a vote for Irene Bordoni as his favorite musical comedy actress. This after seeing her with Jack Buchanan in "Paris" at the Bijou. She is superb.

Stewart Irwin, the "Axel" of the Paramount college comedy "Sweetie" was on the radio Tuesday night. He is making a new picture with Helen Kane on Long Island.

Besides legs, Claudette also has eyes. "And he's got a heart as big as Claudette Colbert's eyes," is the way they express themselves around the Paramount Long Island studio when they want to say something nice about a person. Claudette is perhaps the only movie star who has not yet been in Hollywood. "In fact, I have never west of Chicago in my life," she says, but being only in her early twenties, she has plenty of time.

She only recently went talkie, having been one of the bright lights along Broadway since her stage debut in 1924. Her best known role was in "Dynamo," the mechanistic impressionistic play of Eugene O'Neill.

Her talkie "The Lady Lies" is said to have been one of the finest films ever shown on a local screen. She has just finished "The Big Pond," a talkie with Maurice Chevalier and her next will be "Young Man of Manhattan," from the novel by Katherine Brush which deals with a sports writer and newspaper woman. The script calls for considerable "drinking episodes" which will give Miss Colbert a chance to prove she's a good actress. She doesn't touch alcoholic liquor.

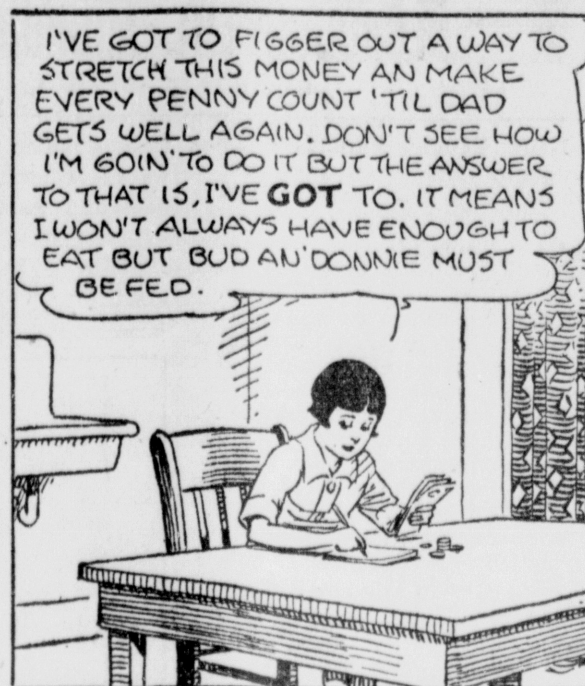

Claudette was born in France and came to America when she was seven, but returns to Paris every year to see relatives. She says French girls drink less than American girls and also spend less money on clothes. Claudette weighs 116 pounds but is shooting for 125. She eats two raw eggs

His real name is John Pringle. Born in Logan, Utah, July 10, 1899. Has had three wives so far—Olivia Burrell, Leatrice Joy and Ina Claire.

Has enacted more roles in real life than before camera lens. Begun stage career at age of one with Eddie Foy. Was reporter on Portland Oregonian, rubber salesman, actor, director and scenarist.

Still has original manuscript of first story he wrote for C. Gardner Sullivan. When Sullivan read it he said, "Stick to acting." Gilbert told him he had no soul.

John's Valuable Nose
Used to worry about his nose because he felt it ruined his work. Now that his weekly salary check is $10,000 pays no attention to it. Considers "The Big Parade," the high spot of his career. Of his picture, "Bardleys, the Magnificent," he said, "Applesauce, with Mr. John Gilbert contributing most of the sauce." Of "Flesh and the Devil," he said, "Only important because of my meeting with a glorious person named Garbo."

Always needs shave when not in pictures. Delights meeting feminine fans when he has a two day's growth of beard.

Thinks three regular meal hours were made only to be broken, and insists on eating whenever he feels hungry. Likes to gamble for lunch check at studio commissary.

No Brown Shoes for John
Hates dressing up. Usually wears blue shirts and soft collars. Seldom wears hat and there isn't a pair of brown shoes in his entire wardrobe.

Is always vacillating between heights of ecstasy and depths of despair. Never slap him on the back without looking at his face first.

Paces up and down set like a caged tiger. Goes home and reads in front of fireplace for hours. Likes milk with chocolate flavor.

prize fights, the radio, music, King Vidor and people who make him laugh.

Dislikes tabloids, personal appearances, "La Boheme," prohibition, Jim Tully, repression and the ignoble way the stock market treated him during the crash.

Big Bill's His Hero
Is a demon on the tennis courts. Considers Bill Tilden more interesting than any actor on earth.

Until recently had same dressing room he had as extra. Now has specially built private bungalow on lot.

Would rather not eat than eat alone. Belgian chef has orders to have a reserve food supply on hand for as many as 100 guests.

Is very proud of the fact that no one had to "ghost" his life story for a fan publication.

Has only one pet—a dachshund —presented him by Donald Ogden Stewart. Lives in secluded hilltop Spanish bungalow between John Barrymore and King Vidor estates. A short time ago met someone who knew him in pictures years ago. Was greeted with "My God, are you still in that game? You certainly are a glutton for punishment. Better get out before they lick you!" Defies anyone to tell him he is famous now.

Dates of stockholders meetings of the various companies involved in the merger will probably be announced in about ten days.
